

Introducing Pila

A Celebration of the Simple and Sculptural

Pila invites you into a celebration of the simple and the sculptural. Designed by Ida Tvede, this lamp takes inspiration from the idea of a floating sphere - its form a pure, elegant balance between art and functionality. Pila, meaning “sphere” in Latin, lives up to its name with a design that captures light within light, a glowing orb appearing to hover weightlessly inside its outer shell.

The adjustable light follows your lead, transforming from gentle mood lighting on a shelf to focused, lively illumination over a garden table. With Pila, the boundary between lamp and artwork blurs, bringing a sense of calm beauty and purposeful light to any space. It’s more than just a lamp. It’s a statement of form and harmony, inviting you to bask in its glow.

Pila uses the revolutionary ONE light source that offers a three-stage dimmable light and 12-hour operation capacity at maximum light output.

A BRAND WITH A BACKSTORY

From pendant lights innovative portable lights, FRANDSEN’s latest collection represents a new chapter in the company’s illustrious history. The designs are drawn in a direction that celebrates how light sets a constant tone in our homes and our lives. More than mere product-shots, the new FRANDSEN universe evolves around a photographic essay, reflecting our everyday existence. Upholding the spirit of the company’s esteemed founder, Benny Frandsen, the brand thereby continues to shape the narrative of contemporary lighting and design and celebrating light in all its forms.
